"NO NOTES

"Just One Thing to Do, and That Is Plain"

New York, Jan. 4.—A prompt severance of diplomatic relations with Germany or Austria is the only course the United States can adopt if it is determined that a submarine of either nation is responsible for the loss of the Persia or Glengyle, with noncombatant Americans aboard, according to Col. George Harvey. He recently returned from a study of war conditions in Europe. He said yesterday that submarine activities of the last few days bear out the views of British naval men that Germany, foiled in the North sea, would put her submarines at work in the Mediterranean.

Col. Harvey is of the opinion that Germany and Austria, despite their recent notes, will continue to "play fast and loose with us, and, if they lay the blame for these last atrocities on a Turkish submarine can we be expected to begin writing notes to Turkey?"

"What is happening in the Mediterranean now," Col. Harvey remarked, "is

DOCTOR SAVES A BLACKSMITH

Some time ago I was taken with kidney trouble, which caused me to give up my work as blacksmith. I lost my appetite and could not sleep. The dreadful pains that would come over me, from my kidneys, I was treated by a physician for about three months. He could not help me, so finally he prescribed Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. I started taking same, and before I had finished taking the first bottle I began to eat and sleep better than I had in a long time. I continued to take same until I was entirely cured and took on considerable weight.

I am now back working at my trade again and never felt better in my life. I appreciate what Swamp-Root has done for me and will recommend it to anyone who suffers with their kidneys. When physicians fail to give relief and then prescribe Swamp-Root, they sure know of its merits. I am,

PURE BLOOD MAKES HEALTHY PEOPLE

Hood's Sarsaparilla surely and effectively removes scrofula, boils and other blood diseases, because it drives out of the blood all the humors that cause these diseases. They cannot be successfully treated in any other way. External applications for their removal have proven almost useless, because they cannot drive out the impurities that are in the blood.

Hood's Sarsaparilla makes pure, rich blood, perfects the digestion, and builds up the whole system. The skin becomes smooth, clean and healthy. This great blood remedy has stood the test of 40 years. Insist on having Hood's, for nothing else acts like it. There is no real substitute. Get it to-day. Sold by all druggists.—Adv.

the very extreme humiliation for us, Germany and Austria, it is clear, regard themselves as in nowise bound by their assertions in notes to our government.

"There is just one thing to do. Our course could not be plainer. We have to establish the fact as to the nationality of the submarine responsible for the losses and then break diplomatic intercourse at once. No delay in this should be countenanced. Let it be for Germany or Austria to decide whether a break in relations means war."

"The policy of Germany and Austria has been one of fast and loose with us from the beginning. I do not believe that it was an Austrian submarine that sank the Ancona, but that the responsibility was put on Austria by Germany."

A naval expert in the English government assured me that he had satisfactory proof that Austria has no submarine of the size of the one that sank the Ancona. In the natural order of events, it appears that we can expect the blame for the most recent submarine attacks to be taken by Turkey."

"It has been expected in England for some time that German submarine operations would be begun in the Mediterranean once her operations in the North sea were found to be too costly."

"I have information from an official source that 70 German submarines were sunk by the British. Why this success has not been made much of by the British government I do not know unless there has been a desire to keep the public from knowing their foe had that many undersea boats."

"One of the most wonderful safeguards for shipping between Dover and Calais is what might be called an iron-clad channel. There are continuous steel nets between the ports. The channel is not very wide, but wide enough for the passage of two boats, and it is guarded by submarine destroyers. Submarines have been caught in the nets and the destroyers have got others."

Federal Order Closes Reserve Bank Board to Politicians.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 4.—Gov. Hanna of North Dakota, Democratic National Committeeman Rolla Wells of St. Louis, at least two bank examiners and many directors of federal reserve banks will be ineligible for reelection under a resolution adopted by the federal reserve board yesterday.

Persons holding political or public offices cannot be directors or officers of reserve banks, it was decided.

A circular announcing this was sent to federal reserve banks. An addition was made to the original resolution that "while the board is of the opinion that the policy outlined in its resolution should become effective at once, directors of federal reserve banks elected prior to the date of its adoption will not be required to resign until the end of their terms."

CONGRESS FEARS BREAK

Unless Destruction of Life
Is Halted U. S. May Be Drawn into War

FOREIGN RELATIONS
SENATORS ANXIOUS

Chairman Stone Will Consult with the President To-day

Washington, Jan. 4.—Profound interest in the submarine controversy with the central powers was aroused in congressional circles yesterday.

This was evidenced not alone by the fact that Senator Stone, chairman of the foreign relations committee, called on Secretary Lansing, and will call on President Wilson to-day, but by the apparent anxiety of different members of the committees over the Persia sinking and over the still fresher disaster to the Glengyle.

The question asked everywhere was:

"Where is submarine war going to stop?"

Undoubtedly, there is a deep-seated feeling in Congress that unless something occurs soon to halt the wanton destruction of life by submarines this country, in spite of all its efforts to keep peace, will be drawn closer to a rupture than ever, and perhaps into the vortex of war itself.

Discussion was renewed more vigorously than ever about the capital yesterday as to whether the submarine issue should be submitted to Congress.

While President Wilson has not spoken on the subject, there is substantial reason to believe that if the difficulty gets to the point of a break with Austria or Germany the president will not take the matter up formally with Congress.

It is known that some of his close advisers feel he ought not to do so. They point out that what the country now will want, unless the responsible power, presumably Austria, quickly disavows responsibility and makes amends, will be prompt and vigorous action.

If the issue is submitted to Congress there will not be all likelihood, be prompt and vigorous action. On the contrary, there will be a fury of debate, in which the whole subject of international complications growing out of the war will be traversed. Pro-Germans will assail England and pro-allies will assail the central powers. In a diplomatic sense, there will be nothing gained and, perhaps, much lost.

In the sense that if the president submits the issue to Congress, he will shift part of the responsibility to that body, the administration might lighten its burden to some extent.

While the situation yesterday looked grave, it was also recognized in Congress circles that the very gravity may result in a quicker and more definite and satisfactory solution of the submarine controversy than would be possible otherwise. That the conditions obtaining at present cannot go on in general is realized.

There seemed to be a growing impression in official quarters that to-day the president may call the Congress leaders together, and acquaint them fully with the situation.

WON'T ACCEPT IT.

Union Members Want More Than Five Per Cent Advance.

Nashua, N. H., Jan. 4.—Union cotton mill operatives throughout New England will not accept the five per cent wage increase which many manufacturers announced would go into effect yesterday, according to a statement made here by John Golden, of Fall River, president of the United Textile Workers. Union operatives, Golden said yesterday, have for some time been considering a demand for a ten per cent increase.

An increase of five per cent had been announced by the Nashua Manufacturing company and the Jackson Manufacturing company to take effect yesterday, but a number of employees who have been on strike and who have not returned declared that they would not accept it. The mills have been in operation for some time and the management of both plants claimed to have sufficient help.

NO WARNING TO PERSIA

And No Effort Was Made to Save People Aboard.

London, Jan. 3.—The Peninsular & Oriental Steamship company last night received the following telegram from Col. C. C. Bigham, who was among the survivors of the Persia disaster:

"A torpedo struck the ship on the port bow at 1:05 o'clock in the afternoon when about 40 miles south of the east end of the Island of Crete. No warning was given, nor any attempt made to assist. Within five minutes the ship had sunk. It was impossible to lower the starboard boats owing to the heavy list. Five or six boats were lowered on the port side. I didn't see this myself, as I was washed overboard when the boat capsized."

"The conduct of the passengers and crew was splendid; there was no struggling and no panic. Four boats after 30 hours at sea were picked up by a war ship."

EXPLOSION ON SHIP.

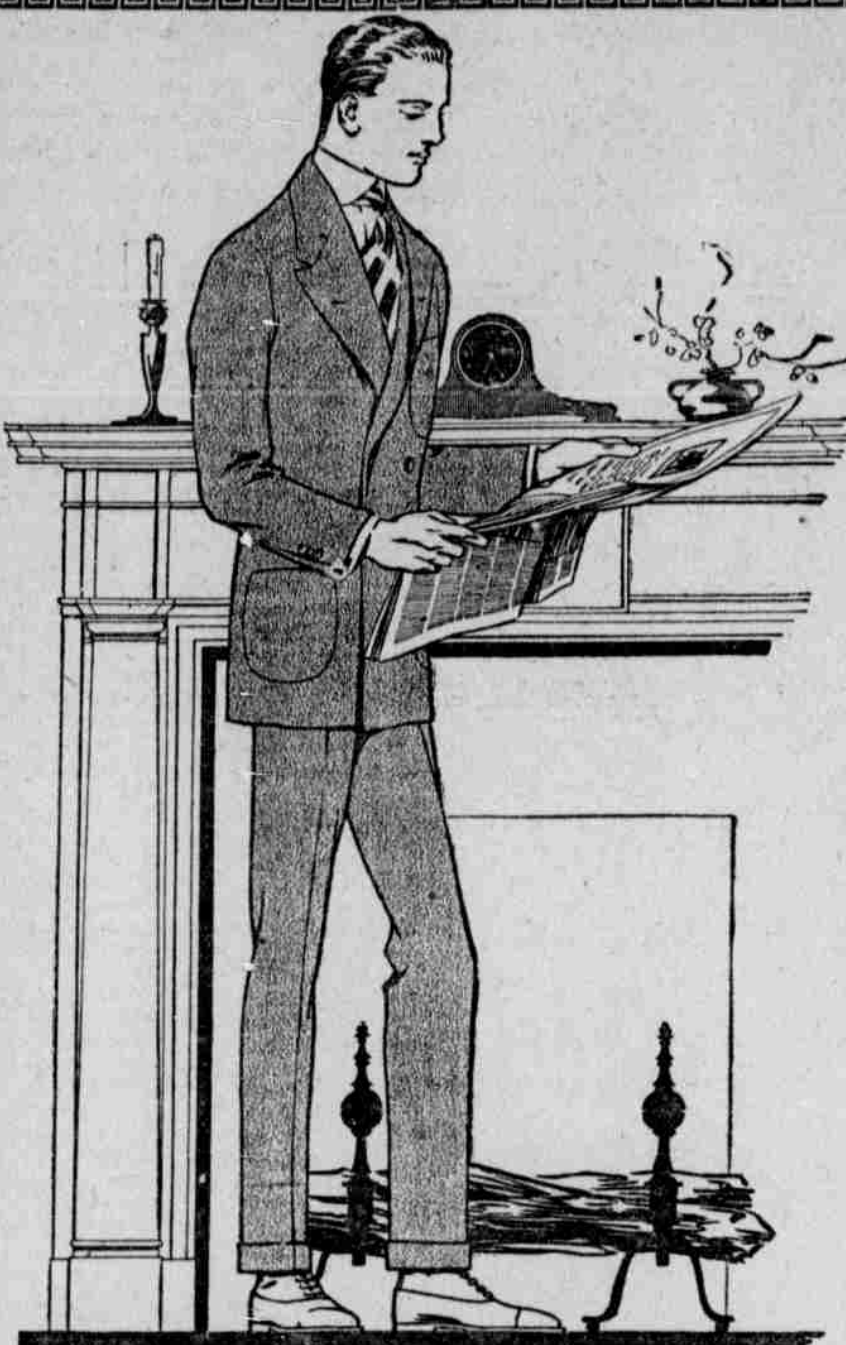

One Man Killed and Many Others in Danger.

New York, Jan. 4.—One man was killed, 10 were seriously injured and 18 others are missing following an explosion and fire yesterday on the steamship Arctar at a Brooklyn dry dock.

An hour after the explosion occurred it was reported that 25 men were in the hold, cut off from rescue by the flames which enveloped the ship.

CONFESSION WAS FALSE, DECLARED MRS. PEASLEE

Wife of Henker Murder Suspect Tells of Officers' Visit

Concord, N. H., Jan. 4.—Mrs. Ethel C. Peaslee continued her testimony yesterday morning in behalf of her husband, Morrison M. Peaslee, on the resumption of his trial for the murder of his father, Howard M. Peaslee, in Henniker.

She testified that the clairvoyant said to have aided the detectives in Portland, Me., in securing confession from Morrison Peaslee was called to her attention by the wife of Detective Albert McDonald. The two women visited the clairvoyant and she told them of a pot of gold on an unnamed, unknown farm belonging to Morrison Peaslee.

It was McDonald himself who urged Peaslee to visit the clairvoyant, but the latter was at first unwilling to do so. Morrison was frightened over the supposed crime in Worcester, Mass., and for a time slept only with the aid of opiates.

After his arrest, officers called on Mrs. Peaslee and told her of Morrison's "confession." She told them the confession was false. She insisted in her conversation with the officers that her husband was with her all the time on the night of the murder and was preparing their child for bed when the fatal shot was fired. When the officers left her, Detective John Sherman said: "We don't care whether you tell or not. We have the confession."

TRY THIS IF HAIR STARTS FALLING

Some Good Advice for Those Threatened with Baldness

At this season of the year many people find their hair coming out at an alarming rate and often fear baldness. This may very easily be the ultimate result if proper scalp treatment is not taken at once. All excessive loss of hair can be almost immediately stopped by the use twice daily of a little Parisian Sage which invigorates and nourishes the slowly dying hair roots into a renewal of healthy normal action. New hair quickly grows on the thin spots, old hair stops falling, and the difference is apparent in a few days by the very look of the hair itself taking on new life, luster and beauty. Parisian Sage can be obtained from the Red Cross Pharmacy or any good druggist. It is not expensive.—Adv.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

Park Theatre.

Bosworth presents the Paramount feature, "Hypocrites," by Lois Weber, endorsed by press, pulpit and public wherever shown. "Hypocrites," the best picture ever offered to a thinking public. It brings home in a vivid manner the tremendous forces which are opposing the welfare of humanity. It tells the truth regarding matters which concern the daily life of every man, woman and child in New England and the entire world. It is to be hoped that all adults who see this picture will use every effort in their power to explain the principles as to the real meaning of an allegorical picture of this nature. It is a splendid opportunity for parents to explain to their children many matters which require delicate handling. If you have not yet seen the picture do so now, and be happy. "Hypocrites" is a chaste, harmless, proper and beautiful. "Hypocrites"—No preacher could preach a more powerful sermon. It is in four reels. See this to-night.—adv.

BARRE OPERA HOUSE.

Madame Wanda Opens Week's Engagement Here.

Without exaggeration, the work of Wanda, the "psychic adept," or whatever one chooses to call her, at the opera house is interesting. Those who were lucky enough to get in were mystified with what they heard and saw. It was uncanny to be sure and at times rather sensational, especially so in the case of a well known man who signed his name to a paper and asked a question. People were informed where to find lost articles and given advice about selling property and the details of what they were doing were mentioned. No one should miss the opportunity of seeing this wonderful woman. Madame Wanda gives a most interesting and instructive performance which appeals strongly to most people, but to all those interested in psychic research and phenomena of the mind her exhibition will prove most fascinating. Madame Wanda's engagement is for the entire week, in conjunction with pictures, seven reels of which will be given every night, all features.—adv.

Silent Enthusiasm.

Charles Rowley, in his book, "Fifty Years of Work Without Wages," tells a story against himself. A nature enthusiast, he was climbing Snowdon and overtook an old gypsy woman. He began to dilate upon the sublimity of the scenery in somewhat gushing phrases. The woman paid no attention to him. Provoked by her irresponsiveness, he said: "You don't seem to care for this magnificent scenery?"

She took the pipe from her mouth and delivered this settler: "I enjies it; I don't jabber."

Where Shelley Was Drowned.

Spezia, the principal naval station of Italy, and about fifty miles southeast of Genoa, described as "the Portsmouth of Italy," has interesting literary associations. It calls up memories of Byron, Shelley, Leigh Hunt, Charles Lever and Mary Somerville. Lever was in residence at Spezia intermittently for some years, and there wrote three of his books. But a more tragic interest is attached to the magnificent bay, for it will be recollected that it was while sailing in a new boat across the gulf to his home at Lerici that Shelley was drowned.

Musical Note.

"What opera did you hear last night?" "Cecil had the program, and he said it was Libretto." "How amusing?" "Yes, wasn't it? Because it really wasn't Libretto at all."—Harvard Lampoon.

Bullets and Snow.

To test the penetration of rifle shots snow walls six feet six inches thick were erected in Aurillac, France. Rifles were fired at a distance of fifty-five yards. In each case the ball was stopped at a penetration of five and a half feet.

SEEKING HAPPINESS.

Little Things That Make Living a Joy
Are Not Always Appreciated.

We are told that happiness comes by pieces and that it is these small bits linked together that make our lives worth while. Some of us are not content to take our happiness by degrees or at intervals. We want it all the time in big pieces, and if we cannot have it that way we think that we are deprived of our natural rights and look upon ourselves as injured beings.

It is a rather singular expression of human nature how happiness affects the individual. With some of us it makes us friendlier toward others and anxious that they should experience like joys; with others it makes us too satisfied with ourselves to think very much of our neighbors.

Perhaps those of us who know what the joy of living means have experienced both of these attitudes at different periods of our lives and are in position, therefore, to appreciate a varying viewpoint, but even so it is only after we lose something of that joy of living and have found out for ourselves that there are shadows which no amount of sunlight can disperse that we can readily appreciate the blessing of whatever happiness may find its way into our lives.

The little things that count so much in our intercourse with each other are not always regarded as highly as they should be, and for this reason we pass by much that would give us joy if we only knew how and where to find it.—Charleston News and Courier.

The Story of "Hard Hit."

"Mr. Orchardson, if I thought that by killing you I could paint a picture like yours I would stab you to the heart." Such was the remark made by Pellegrini, the famous caricaturist, to the Royal academician, Sir William Orchardson, when at a private view he first saw "Hard Hit," the picture of the ruined gambler. "It was," said the artist, "the greatest compliment I could have had." Curiously enough, the model who sat for the ruined gambler was rather fond of cards himself. One day the artist noticed that he looked somewhat depressed. "What is the matter?" he asked. "I was awfully hard hit last night," he answered. "By Jove," replied the artist, jumping up with delight, "I've got it at last! 'Hard Hit,' of course." And that is how the picture got its name.

Pottery and Secrecy.

In the royal manufactory of pottery at Meissen, Saxony, the work was formerly carried on with the utmost secrecy to prevent the processes from becoming known elsewhere. The establishment was a complete fortress, the portcullis of which was not raised day or night, no stranger being permitted to enter for any purpose whatever. Every workman, even the chief inspector, was sworn to silence. This injunction was formally repeated every month to the superior officers employed, while the workmen had constantly before their eyes in large letters the warning motto, "Be Secret Unto Death." It was well known that any person divulging the process would be imprisoned for life in the castle of Koenigstein. Even the king himself when he took strangers of distinction to visit the works was enjoined to secrecy. One of the foremen, however, escaped and assisted in establishing a manufactory in Vienna, from which the secrets spread all over Germany.

Natural Pottery.

Excellent natural pottery is manufactured by nature in the case of a certain cactus. Woodpeckers are apt to excavate nests in the trunk and branches, and in order that it may protect itself against these incursions the plant exudes a sticky juice, which hardens, forming a woody lining to the hole made by the birds. Eventually the cactus dies and withers, but the wooden bowl remains.

Dodging Trouble.

"What's the matter?" "My wife says I don't know how to handle the baby." "I wouldn't get muffed over that, son," said the older man. "Take my advice and don't learn."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Pertinent Question.
